North Star Health and GlobalCare partner to market Lumina™ a software suite of health risk and cost management tools

Alpharetta, GA June 6, 2008 –North Star Health and GlobalCare announced today an agreement to jointly market Lumina™ a software suite of health risk and cost management tools that integrate wellness, preventive health and disease management functionalities into a single platform. Lumina provides to the user retrospective, real time and prospective health data analytical reporting.

75% of every health care dollar today is spent on chronic disease. Chronic disease represents 7 out of 10 deaths and yet less than $10 per person per year is spent on prevention. Identifying the potential for chronic disease before the on-set and delivering information, health and wellness programs can prevent or delay healthcare costs while improving the individual's life.

Paul Davis, MD, Founder and CEO, North Star Health, "Our focus is providing information on how to influence the behaviors that represent the root cause for increased health care spending in a population. As a result, our products help employers engage employees in a cost savings process that promotes a corporate culture of health and wellness from the top down"

"Of all the technologies we have reviewed only one, Lumina™ from North Star Health combines both Health Risk Assessment tools for the employee with Analytics and Predictive Modeling for the employer", states Robert Marcoux, Vice President of Marketing and Sales, GlobalCare. "The easy-to-understand Dashboard Reports with drill down capabilities are powerful tools for building cost prevention and management plans."

"GlobalCare's focus on proactively managing healthcare costs for health plans and third party administrators directly aligns with our core mission to provide information management tools to reduce costs before they occur. We are excited to work with GlobalCare to deliver tools to help people live better while containing medical expenses", states Rob White, Chief Operating Officer, North Star Health.
